

CAPE MALAY MINSTRELS

The Cape Malay Minstrels ("Kaapse Klopse"), synonymous for their vibrant music, painted faces and rainbow-coloured satin costumes, have been parading down the streets of central Cape Town for almost 300 years. The traditional folk music played by the Cape Minstrels was developed in the mid 1800's, when many of the Cape Colony slaves emancipated from slavery, joined roaming Hottentot bands to earn a living.

Today the minstrels represent a celebration of history, symbolic of the various ethnic groups coming together in the cultural melting pot known as Cape Town. Musicians, dancers and singers of all ages form part of this unique group, cheerfully reflecting the festive and colourful nature of the South African people with their banjo's, drums and tambourines.

The perfect Capetonian welcome for tour groups and festivities, our Minstrel groups and troupes are seasoned performers and a favourite choice amongst tour companies and event organisers in Cape Town.
