

STUART TAYLOR

Stuart Taylor is probably best known to South Africans as the presenter of SABC 3's hit travel show, 'Going Nowhere Slowly'. But when this Stellenbosch University science graduate is not in front of the camera with mud-powdered face and wind-styled hair, Taylor is enchanting local and international audiences with his headline, stand-up comedy and magic shows.

His award-winning formula of a meticulous fusion of comedy and magic earned him recognition as South Africa's Comedy Magic Champion, a title he held for three years. After ditching his microscope and lab coat, Taylor's delightful potion of enigmatic entertainment has mesmerised audiences from theatres to boardrooms across South Africa, performing for many of the country's top companies.

Taylor's uncanny ability to cast spells of unbridled laughter on virtually any audience, earned him the adoration of critics and fans for his performances at the Pleasance Dome at the Edinburgh Fringe Festival, the Berlin International Comedy Festival and his sold-out comedy-magic theatre productions throughout South Africa.

His theatre production 'Learner Husband' played to critical acclaim across the country from the Baxter Theatre in Cape Town to the Market Theatre in Johannesburg, as well as a successful run at the National Arts

His show 'Money's Too Tight To Mention' toured to critical acclaim, with audiences happily laughing the recession blues away!
